

“Cannabis that could replace pills.”

- TIME MAGAZINE

Our definition of what it means to be healthy is changing and so are the tools we use to keep us healthy and happy. The Western dependency on pharmaceuticals is no longer accepted without question and therapies that were once considered “alternative” have been scientifically proven and gone mainstream.

Despite its being used as a wellness tool since the dawn of time, the real science around cannabis began to take shape in the latter half of the 20th century – and people are finally starting to take notice.

dosist™ is committed to harnessing the healing power of cannabis and providing safe, natural plant-based medicine in a format that is consistent, effective, and predictable.

